Maurice Johnson Scholarship for Menasha High School

Background:

Maurice (pronounced "Morris") Johnson was born in Neenah, Wisconsin in 1949. He grew up in the Town of Menasha and graduated as the valedictorian from Menasha High School in 1968. As an enthusiastic booster of MHS's athletic teams, he served as statistician for the basketball squad. He was also editor in chief of the Nicolet Year Book of 1968.

Mr. Johnson spent four years at the University of Wisconsin - Madison, graduating in 1972 with honors in German Language and Literature. He participated in the Junior Year Abroad Program in Freiburg, Germany. In addition, he earned a Masters of Arts degree in German/Comparative Literature from Cornell University in 1973.

From 1973 to 1997, Mr. Johnson worked for the New York City-based company Associated Merchandising Corporation, a buying cooperative of international department stores such as Bloomingdale's and Marshall Field. Most of his tenure was spent in international product development and sourcing.

From 1998 until his retirement in 2017, Mr. Johnson served as Associate Professor of Fashion Merchandising Management at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology / State University of New York.
